Samvardhana Motherson’s margin drag could persist

Demand pressures, increased costs could weigh in near term

RAM PRASAD SAHU
Mumbai, 20 August

Multiple headwinds dented the operating performance of the country’s largest listed auto component maker by revenues, Samvardhana Motherson.

Given the lower than expected operating profit margins and weak demand trends for its key segments, most brokerages have cut their earnings estimates.

The uncertainty over tariffs and auto demand has led to a 13 per cent fall in the stock price from the June highs.

The company’s operating profit at ₹2,458 crore was 10 per cent below estimates while operating profit margins were down 150 basis points to 8.1 per cent.

The impact on profitability was on account of structural challenges in Europe, timing lag in pass through of tariff-related costs, start-up costs in the non-auto segment, and early-stage integration adjustments for acquired assets.

Going ahead, brokerages expect pressure on margins due to demand pressures and increased costs.

Analysts led by Saksham Kausal of JM Financial Research have reduced their operating profit margin estimates by 20 basis points (bps) for FY26 and by 30 bps for FY27. They believe that near-term margin pressures are likely to persist, given weak demand in developed markets and ramp-up costs from greenfields.

Revenues at the consolidated level saw an increase of 5 per cent year-on-year (Y-o-Y) on the back of robust performance in emerging business, which rose 43 per cent with 12 per cent growth in the integrated assembly segment and about 4 per cent growth in the wiring harness division and vision systems. The modules and polymer segment revenues were down 1 per cent.

While Motilal Oswal Research has cut its net profit estimates by 9 per cent for FY26 to incorporate a weak Q1 performance and an adverse near-term macro in key regions, it is positive on the long term outlook and has maintained a buy rating.

Aniket Mhatre of the brokerage expects the company to continue to outperform global automobile sales. He felt it would be fuelled by rising premiumisation and electric vehicle transition, a robust order backlog in autos and non-autos, and successful integration of recent acquisitions.

HDFC Securities believes that the continuing global demand headwinds and supplier distress coupled with a strong balance sheet are beneficial for the company. It expects the company to close on acquisitions, now that the US tariff scenario is getting less foggy.

On the impact of US tariffs, the company highlighted that exports from India to the US were just $10 million or 0.3 per cent of consolidated revenues. Other exports into the US are mostly via Mexico and are United States-Mexico-Canada or USMCA compliant. Thus the impact is minimal and it is in discussion with auto makers for pass-through of costs related to non-USMCA compliant parts.

Kotak Research, too, believes that the company will benefit over the medium term from an increase in content per vehicle in passenger vehicles.

It would be driven by mergers and acquisitions (M&As) and premiumisation, strong relationships with automakers, consolidation of suppliers and robust growth in the non-automotive business.

It, however, has a sell rating as valuations are in the expensive zone.

VALUE FUNDS

Earning recovery can revive performance, invest with five-year horizon

SARBAJEET KSEN

Value funds delivered strong returns in 2023 (up 35.2 per cent) and 2024 (20.1 per cent). However, they have had a turbulent time recently, with a category average loss of 2.8 per cent over the past year.

Investors remain optimistic, pouring in ₹1,470 crore in July 2025. As many as 38 schemes managed assets worth ₹2.04 trillion (as on July 31), according to data from the Association of Mutual Funds in India. “Value funds had a good run over three to four years as the economic recovery played out post-Covid. Some cyclical adjustment may have played out in the last 9-12 months on this style,” says Krishna Sanghavi, chief investment officer, equities, Mahindra Manulife Mutual Fund.

Spotting value picks

Value funds aim to identify attractively priced stocks. Investors benefit when markets adjust, and stock prices move closer to fair value. These schemes tend to do well when the market offers mispriced opportunities.

“Value funds have the potential to deliver superior returns over the long term by identifying and investing in cheaper stocks that have the potential to appreciate. These funds also offer downside protection, as they focus on undervalued stocks,” says Sonam Udasi, senior fund manager, Tata Mutual Fund.

Alongside actively managed value funds offered traditionally, passive options have been launched in the recent past. Index-based funds suit those wary of fund manager risk. For example, Nifty50 Value 20 index funds focus on largecaps, while Nifty500 Value 50 index funds offer broader exposure.

Scope for turnaround

Value funds can witness a turnaround and contribute to wealth creation as the pace of earnings revives.

“Broadly, value as a category does well when growth is broad-based, with valuations at or below fair zones. Since the early part of 2025, valuations have been on the higher side, which can be a challenge. Incrementally, the correction in the broader markets in the past few months and expectations of earnings growth recovery are positive for the value style,” says Christy Mathai, fund manager-equity, Quantum Asset Management Company.

“As the economy recovers and market momentum broadens, value funds are likely to do well. Broader markets tend to offer more opportunities for value investing. With the current market consolidating for the past year, it is an opportune time to consider value funds with a long investment horizon,” says Udasi.

Beware of volatility

Value funds can be volatile in certain market conditions.

Robust long-term track record

| Period | Category average returns (%) |
|---------|------------------------------|
| 1-year | -2.8 |
| 3-year | 18.3 |
| 5-year | 22.9 |
| 10-year | 14.3 |

Returns are of direct plans
Source: PBCS.in “Value funds typically do well in phases of the market cycle where valuations are reasonably supported by earnings growth. In euphoric phases where markets do not give much credence to valuation or quality of companies, the value style may disappoint. An investor needs to be prepared for underperformance in such phases,” says Mathai.

Some value funds may invest in turnaround stories or companies undergoing restructuring. While such bets can unlock significant value, they are often riskier and may take longer to play out.

Long-term play

Experts suggest that investors consider value funds only with a long-term horizon.

“These are diversified to capture opportunities across market caps via stocks that are undervalued vis-à-vis the market. This characteristic makes them a good fit for the core portion of equity allocation. The ideal holding period for a value fund, like any other equity fund, is more than five years,” says Mathai.

Systematic investment plans should be the preferred route to build exposure.

“Investors willing to ignore market momentum and instead focus on earnings that can deliver a re-rating can invest in value funds. Allocation can be between 20 and 50 per cent of the equity allocation,” says Sanghavi.
